Stan Hey

“Although my neighbours are all barbarians, And you, you are a thousand miles away, There are always two cups on my table.”

Tang Dynasty

GUNPOWDER GREEN TEA & MINT

Gunpowder and Mint is a blend of green tea and mint leaves. It has a punchy, sweet flavour and a gentle earthy colour. The ‘gunpowder’ part of the name comes from the shape of the green teas once they have been rolled into little pellets. Rolling tea like this helps to lock in the delicious flavours, and combined with steamed fresh peppermint leaves from Egypt, this creates a reviving drink. Add a teaspoon of sugar to release the flavours and bring out the sweetness. Best drunk without milk.

JASMINE PEARLS

Each jasmine pearl is hand-fashioned by twisting exceptionally long, downy leaf bud sets together and rolling them into silvery balls. These are then scented six times with fresh, aromatic jasmine flowers. When brewed, the pearls unravel to reveal an elegant scent and a sweet, fresh silvery liquor with the delicate taste of jasmine blossoms. Best enjoyed without milk or sugar.
Choose from these three very different but equally special tea rituals.

BRITISH AFTERNOON
A quintessentially British tradition, this classic tea ceremony dates back to the 1830’s when Anna Maria, the Seventh Duchess of Bedford, first introduced it to her exclusive circle of friends.

TISANE
Originating from the Greek for barley water, the Tisane ritual offers not teas, but a fabulous array of herbal and fruit infusions – perfect for those seeking a light and refreshingly different experience.

ORIENTAL
A delightful fusion of Chinese and Japanese traditional tea ceremonies, with all the poise and elegance of the Orient, this delicate, precise ritual takes you back to the true origins of tea.

TAIWANESE HIGH MOUNTAIN OOLONG
Sourced from the Dung Ding mountains in Taiwan, a location which gives the Oolong a subtle delicate flavour, High Mountain Oolong is a honey-coloured tea with a spring-like fragrance and a velvety texture. Oolong is made using only the youngest tea leaves, and unlike black tea leaves, they aren’t given a chance to fully oxidize. This results in a light, blossomy tea which is rich in antioxidants. Oolong is a delicate tea so is best drunk without milk.

LONG JING GREEN
Long Jing or ‘Dragonwell’ green tea was developed in Zhejiang province in China during the Ming & Qing dynasties and is recognised as the finest variety of green tea from China, being one of China’s ‘10 famous teas’. It is produced in misty hills around the famous West Lake, near the city of Hangzhou, in the Dragonwell Springs area. Commonly produced by hand, the leaf has a long, flat appearance creating a rounded full-bodied green tea which tastes sweet initially, with a slightly savoury aftertaste of ‘popped corn’. Enjoy with or without sugar.
The origin of tea dates back to 2737 BC and Chinese Emperor Shen Nung’s discovery when the leaves of a nearby tea tree fell into some water his entourage were boiling. From its Chinese routes Japan started to learn about and drink tea in the 7th/8th century AD, developing its own distinctive tea ceremony Cha-no-yu, based on the Buddhist search for spiritual refreshment and harmony with the universe.

The traditions of the Far East have always been very different to that of the western world, as have their tea rituals. This Oriental tea ritual is a combination of both Chinese and Japanese ceremonies, taking you back to the Eastern origins of tea by combining notes from both tea cultures to create a delicate and elegant Oriental ritual around the following fine teas.
Anna Maria, the Seventh Duchess of Bedford, is credited with the invention of afternoon tea in 1840. She is said to have experienced what she called a ‘sinking feeling’ in the middle of the afternoon due to the long gap between light luncheon and her evening meal. To relieve her hunger pangs she asked her footman to bring her a pot of tea and a little light refreshment. She enjoyed this ritual so much she began to invite her friends over for tea and gossip about the latest scandal. The ritual caught on and afternoon tea became all the rage among the upper crust. Soon all of fashionable London was indulging in afternoon tea, as you can too with this classic British institution.

Follow in the Duchess of Bedford’s footsteps and indulge your sense of fantasy with our Afternoon Tea Ritual. Simply choose from the following range of fine teas and enjoy this uniquely British experience.
TRADITIONAL ENGLISH

This traditional tasting tea is a blend of the finest Assam teas from the rich flood plains of the Brahmaputra River in India, known to deliver exceptional tasting tea. A classic, robust and traditional tasting tea, which gives a strong, smooth, rich liquor. Can be enjoyed with or without milk. If preferred a sprinkle of sugar can be added to enhance the flavour.

TRADITIONAL ENGLISH DECAFFEINATED

The same classic blend as Traditional English, but naturally decaffeinated for a rich tasting tea, without the caffeine. Perfect for those looking to cut down on caffeine without compromising on taste.
PEPPERMINT
Whole peppermint leaves have been roughly cut to produce a refreshing and cleansing drink. Full of minty fresh flavour, this infusion delivers a cooling caffeine-free brew. Reputed to aid digestion, it is ideal as an after-dinner drink. As refreshing as a bare-foot walk through the morning dew at sunrise, this vibrant and clean infusion is sure to blow the cobwebs away.

BLACKCURRANT & LAVENDER
The rich combination of sweet blackcurrant and lavender provides a delicious autumn taste, transporting you to picturesque views of fiery golden leaves, vibrant holly berry hedgerows and fields of golden crops ready for harvest. Take comfort in the fresh and fruity flavours, which provide a touch of warmth as the evenings get colder and the nights draw in.

PEPPERMINT & ROOIBOS
The warming taste of Rooibos, delicately combined with the cooling, refreshing hint of peppermint, transports you to a moment of calm and serenity as you drift along the banks of the Nile, gazing into star-lit desert nights.

2ND FLUSH ASSAM
Assam is a strong black tea with a rich copper colour. 2nd Flush Assam, the harvest picked in June only, is known for being particularly smooth, and bursting with rich, malty character. This is a full-bodied tea and makes a great alternative to coffee, due to its strength of flavour. This tea can be enjoyed with or without milk.

SIGNATURE EARL GREY
A rich dark Keemun tea from the Anhui province of China, blended with the oil of the citrus fruit Bergamot, and combined with delicate lavender flowers to produce an aromatic floral blend. The liquor delivers a deep copper colour, whilst the lavender emits a soothing relaxing aroma. This tea can be enjoyed with a dash of milk, or with a slice of lemon to bring out the Bergamot flavour.
The word “tisane” originates from the Greek word “ptisane”, a drink made from pearl barley, but is by definition any herbal infusion other than one from the leaves of the tea bush. Tisanes can be made with fresh or dried flowers, leaves, seeds or roots, generally by pouring boiling water over the plant parts and letting them steep for a few minutes. The tisane is then strained, sweetened if so desired, and served.

Herbal “tea” is best known for its medicinal effects. Though very little scientific evidence exists of its actual efficacy, herbal tea is still highly regarded as a preventative treatment for certain ailments. Choose from a range of light and refreshing infusions, which will brew to give a delicate and fragrant taste and aroma.
